Seminar Description

This seminar focuses on UN peace operations within the context of a shifting global order. It offers an examination of the development, core principles, and key debates surrounding the authorization, deployment, and outcomes of UN peace operations. Following an overview of the historical evolution of UN peace operations within a changing global political landscape, it investigates various aspects including the use of force and protection of civilians, the interaction between UN peace operations and local populations, the role of emerging powers, and recent trends characterized by increased geopolitical competition and their impact on UN peace operations. Moreover, it introduces different approaches for evaluating the success or failure of UN peace operations and concludes with a discussion on potential future trajectories.

Seminar Style

Every session relies on a required reading, which participants are required to review prior to the session. Consequently, it is anticipated that all attendees will be capable of grasping the fundamental message conveyed in the required reading and contribute comments or critiques for group discussion. Supplementary readings are utilized as foundations for the presentations.

Examination of the module

The module grade is based on a written examination in the form of a seminar paper (13 – 15 pages). Through their seminar paper, students will document to which extent they have gained a foundational understanding in the area of contemporary UN peacekeeping operations. The seminar paper is accompanied by a presentation (10-15 min) to test the communicative competence of presenting scientific topics to an audience. The presentation must be supplemented by a short-written handout.

- Presentation (20%): Each session contains a presentation part of 12-15 minutes per student. For each presentation, a handout of max. two pages is prepared. The presentation (1) summarizes the core statements of the supplementary texts briefly, (2) clarifies theoretical connections using empirical examples chosen by the students themselves, and (3) places the topic in the larger seminar context. In addition, (4) media supporting the content are used (e.g. blackboard, presentation slides, etc.) The presentation serves as content preparation for the seminar paper.
- Seminar Paper (80%): Written paper of 13-15 pages (without bibliography and title page) based on a theoretical question in the context of the seminar topic. The seminar paper explores the compulsory texts and the supplementary reading for a session in more depth. In addition, further secondary and primary sources should be consulted to answer the chosen question. Topic, question and approach can be discussed and determined together with the lecturers during the lecture period. If you would like to take advantage of this, please prepare a draft of your seminar paper (topic/session, possible question, theory, case selection) of no more than one page and send it by e-mail to the lecturer at least three days before the office hours. The seminar paper must be submitted via Moodle by September 15, 2024 (midnight) at the latest.
